

Harris County Technical Strategy

Bruce High
Chief Information Officer
Harris County Information Technology Center

Master Plan

	"Informational"	"Interaction"	"Transactional"
Attributes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - An application w/ a simple, familiar, and consistent user experience - Simple collaboration activities - No data integrations - No analytical reporting - Department level administration - Self provisioning ("self help") 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - A fairly simple application - Customized end user interface - Portable and repeatable - Data integrations w/ established web services - Centralized ITC supported application - Shortened development life cycle required ("we need it fast") 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Custom application - Custom end user interface - Data integrations w/ disparate data sources - Centralized ITC supported application - Workflow processing - Heavy reporting requirements
Current State As of 2009	Web 1.0 Collaboration 1.0	Custom Coded Applications Commercial, off-the-shelf (COTS) Applications	JIMS IFAS GIS
Current Needs	Web 2.0 Blogs, Wikis, RSS feeds, IM	Rapid Development Reusable / Repeatable	JIMS2 IFAS 7.9
	Analytics / Reporting
	Customer Relationship Management Tools		GIS 2.0
	Content Management
	Enterprise Records Management
	Integration Strategy/Convergence
	Enterprise Search
	Mobility Solutions (Anywhere, Anytime, Anyway)		